Description:

Submissions are now being accepted for the 2009 Palladio Awards. The eighth annual competition will recognize outstanding work in traditional commercial, institutional, public and residential projects. The Palladio Awards program is co-produced by Traditional Building and Period Homes and is named in honor of Andrea Palladio, the Renaissance architect whose work drew on past models for inspiration. The program strives to recognize individual designers and design teams that enhance the built environment through creative interpretation and adaptation of design principles of 2,500 years of Western architectural tradition.
